CITY COUNCIL.

WAXEM FOR PRESIDENT.

He Says That He Will Run if No One Else Will

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Democratic Politicks seems to be gittin the upper hand of statesmanship at the national capital just now, and congress don't seem to have any object except to vote till nite comes, so's they can adjurn to some dacup and quiet place, where the national legislaters can throw aside their business and discuss the prospecks for 1888. So manny dishes, cooked in sherry and peppercoustine men air positively chockin to run for the presidency that my statesmen air gittin nervous, and the most modest ones of us is takin in deep meditations, "Is there a nigger in the woodpile?" "Is the white House hunted?" or what is got into abie when that they air crowdin each other in the desperate rush to let the people know they don't want to go there to live. There must be sumthin rotten in Denmark, or that wouldent be so allfired much upsell, and I'm goin to git our moral reforms community at work and see what's the matter, and find out why the greatest gift in the hands of the people can be, likely throwed over his shoulder by any citizen of this broad land of freedom whether he is statesman, soldier, sailor or any other man. In course, only one kind has refused so far but the skeeriptic is bound to spread, for these things is ketchin, and the first thing we know we will be havin the final modders cross on record of the ofise seekin the man. But that will never be, for I shall raise in my place in the history of American politicks and pertest again it. Yes Mr Ladd sir, pertest again it to the end that I and myself as a willin sacrifis to the universal demand for a unanimous statesman that will take the helium of the ship of state and harmonise all differences and make our grate and glorious republic one in thought action and politicks at least temperarily. I am a patriot as well as a statesman, and while that is breth in my boddy, strength in my arms, brains in my hed and a hart in my buzzum I will not stand idle by and see our grate and important intrusts, even to national preservation suffer. No siree, and I reject it in thunder tones. I dont seek it obsequiously, but before I see it go begin I can be prevailed on to except it at the hands of a constitin and unanimous people.

The fishery treaty has got into the senate, but I am free to confess I aint got much interest in it. Salt mackerels red herrin and codfish is so cheap and plenty in Wayback, and has been all along, that I aint been called on by my constituents to take any active part in fixin up the trenty so's it will benefit our people. On the grate principal that them Canadians aint goin to be allowed to throw their slops on the American flag, I'm in favor of anything that will be for us and again them, and I understand the treaty is purty much that way, or as much so as we could git it and preserve the ententy cordjally but further than that I am not prepaired to giv a public opinion.

Ther has been one thing that has happened recently that so fer I have not heard any constroversy concernin, and that is Washington's birthday. Congress adjourned over a day, and all the public offices closed ther doors in honer of the day without a dissentin voise, and I was glad to see it, for it shows we are one when it comes to a question of national patriotism. The day was as bustiful as ever the sun shone on, and the intire population of the capital city turned out to enjoy themselves and thank the Lord that a Washington had been born to them that made all this possible. In lookin over history I find the names of a good many men that have made the world better, but ther aint one in the whole lot that can hold a candle to our George. He not only set us on the ladder which we have clim so gloriously to but he made the ladder and filled the dirt in for it to stand on, and he done it again as an operation that would have donned any man that has lived before or sence. He is the only man I can reccollect that had so much confidence in his forsites as he had in his fellowtates, and he went rite ahead knoin that he was layin the way for a procession like the world had never heerned of. He could hear the feet's of the millions comin behind him and he never flickered but kep rite on knowin that he would never git thar, hims if but that what he laid down a gide board would be put up that the advancin procession could never git out of site of and that lookin back through centuries of progress they could see it was a straite bed to the hevvins and pintin the way still onward an upward.

Society in Washington is get purty right as much at a odd lock in to it as legislation has and Lent is exercisin a good deel more influents than anybody would a thought possible to have saw the mad rush just before it set in. Wimmen aint like men in ther dissipatin. It always takes a man a good while to rapes off, but wimmen dont taper at all. They jist go bustin ahead for all that is in it, and then they quit right thar and yistedy aint no more in ther heds today than if it was the day befor creation. I re notist at I come when me and Mandy went I come home from the Wayback county fair that it took my hed about a week to go down, but the verry next mornin Mandy would be out in her caliker dress and blue drillin apern knockin the pots and kittels around, slappin the children's faces shoman the chickens out of the garden jawin me for bein late to brekfas, and stirrin me the

We have received a letter from Oregon asking if there is a real estate agent in town. Should any of our readers be certain of this fact we would thank them for information

We have received from T S Green state engineer a pamphlet entitled Remarks on the Flow of Water in Ditches.' The book is of great value in determining the proper distribution of water and will be of great use to the water commissioners or any one interested in the subject

New England is most interested in the fishery dispute The twelve senators from New England are republicans There is a tendency for these twelve republican senators to make capital against the administration in the discussion of the fishery treaty before the senate If a fishery commission could make a better treaty with Great Britain, these senators are amply justified in protesting against the ratification of the treaty But they are not justified in doing it simply for the purpose of making party capital

The question of incorporating that part of the city west of the Monument into a ward is an important one and should be carefully considered by the committee of the council having ... in charge The proposed ward embraces an area larger than any ward in the city. Over $10 000 has been spent there within the past year in the way of public ... by private individuals ... of the city which would be ... and within its limits in the course of the ... it is ... the will be thickly settled, and its interests would be specially looked after by aldermen living in that locality The creek would make an excellent boundary line for a new ward

We occasionally receive a copy of a paper called 'The Silver Dollar' which is published at Cleveland for the purpose of agitating the silver question but the paper has no avocation now The editorials against silver which frequently appeared in the eastern papers two or three years ago have ceased. The issue is dead and almost forgotten The reason is obvious From the very beginning the eastern papers made wild predictions as to the effect of the coinage of silver which were never fulfilled Though these predictions failed year after year, there was some confidence that there was a basis for them, because of the respectability of the newspaper But finally the most credulous people declined to take stock any longer in such predictions and the eastern papers were compelled to stop their editorials on the silver question It amply justifies all that we have said We drew repeated attention to their dishonesty and insincerity in giving facts If the eastern papers had devoted half their energy and space to getting rid of the ... double ... and greenback they would have succeeded and would have put our currency on a strong basis

The Denver Republican seems to feel pretty badly if any railroad coming into this state does not make its terminus in Denver It is rather a remarkable fact however that there is seldom an opportunity for injuring railroad property that the Republican does not improve Yesterday it told the striking engineers how they might defeat in part the operation of the interstate commerce bill and not be considered conspirators Last now all the Denver papers seem to take the side of the strikers which rather leads one to a good cause or not But railroads have made Denver all that it is It would be just as well for the railroads to make Denver feel that it is not master of the situation and perhaps they will be treated with more justice Certainly very little gratitude is shown to the railroads for what they have done Denver however is likely to feel the effects of this as of the four lines that are likely to be extended into Colorado within the next fifteen months three at least will come to Colorado Springs Corporations are frequently ... in ... wrong than the workingmen But the ... fewer ... than ... are ... when they are right
